Introducing collection course ordering

2024-02-29 - Ester Andersson - Product Highlight

We are thrilled to unveil an exciting new feature: the ability to arrange courses within collections. This enhancement empowers you to provide your learners with a structured roadmap for their educational journey. Now, you can prescribe a recommended course completion sequence, ensuring a smooth and logical progression through your learning program.

Whether certain courses must be tackled in a specific order to meet prerequisites or to optimize comprehension, or if arranging them simply streamlines the learning path, this feature offers clarity for learners as they can now navigate through your content with confidence, knowing the optimal sequence to follow.

To order courses within a collection, go to the collection page and use the + and - to arrange the order.

Order	Course Name	Status
1	Preboarding	Active
2	Onboarding	Active
3	Cyber-security training	Active
